The Grand Rounds Series aims to offer its audience a wide variety of topics from a diverse group of speakers to not only help them remain current on the latest advances in medicine, but to also assist them as they continue to grow professionally. Medicine grand rounds are an integral component of medical education, teaching new information and enhancing clinical reasoning skills. This presentation will review the history of non-alcoholic fatty liver disease, including demographic information and pathophysiology. The new nomenclature (metabolic dysfunction-associated steatotic liver disease (MASLD)) will be reviewed. Finally, medication and lifestyle treatment for MASLD will be reviewed.

Audience

This course is designed for hospitalists, nurse practitioners, physician assistants, advance practice nurses, registered nurses, allied health professionals, physicians and residents.

Learning Objectives

At the conclusion of this activity, learners will be able to:

- Recognize fatty liver disease, including demographic information and pathophysiology.
- Explain why the nomenclature of NAFLD/NASH was changed to MASLD.
- Summarize the current state of treatment of MASLD.
